

Never Again further study

1. What do you remember?

What do you remember from the lesson? In the box / in your notebook, write ten words that you connect with the lesson. They can be nouns, adjectives, names, countries, verbs...anything you like, as long as they are connected to the lesson.

2. Before you watch the film

Before you watch the film, answer the three questions;

1. What is the title of the film?
2. Who is giving the lecture?
3. How long is the film?

3. Note taking

Watch the film. Note down the main ideas, names, themes in the film. An example is given here.

4. Writing task

Explain the main idea that comes to you from the film. Explain it in a way that an eight year old can understand. Here is an example. Use the notes from task 3 if you wish.

Lessons of history.

History is important. We have to learn not to repeat mistakes from the past. One of the most important lessons from history is the danger of intolerance.

Everyone should have the right to be themselves. Everyone should be free to think for themselves and act for themselves. And everyone should respect others and their opinions.

If we look at the world today, this is not always the situation that we see around us. We can, however, all change this in a positive way.

5. Links

The film may have stimulated your interest on the wider issue History and its relevance to today's world. Here are two links on the subject – one with a film to watch, and one with something to read.

Film: Simon Wiesenthal https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=7_cA4jnrX9c

Reading : Quotes from The Lessons of History <https://www.sloww.co/lessons-of-history-quotes/>

6. Further investigation

You may wish to look further into the subjects, themes and name mentioned in the films. Google, YouTube and Wikipedia are three basic tools to make use of.

Try them with the following key words

Nuremberg trials

1946 Europe

1989 Europe

tolerance

The rainbow flag

civil rights

Research is always better conducted when you have some idea of what you are looking for. Make a list of key words from the lesson and film and use them to conduct some online investigations of your own.